03. WEATHER IN MAY

Lima in May: between 14° and 21°C (57°–70°F)

The "garúa" season brings light, cool mist — no heavy rain. May is a great time to explore Lima: fewer tourists, more accessible prices, ideal for museums, gastronomy, and culture.

04. DRESS CODE

The GLI Forum LatAm dress code is Business Casual.

- Bring a light coat or jacket — Lima's cold in May can surprise you
- Comfortable footwear for moving around during the event
- A small umbrella or light raincoat in case of garúa
- Sunscreen: UV index can be high even on cloudy days

05. SAFETY

While the areas where the event takes place are among the safest in Lima, as in any large city, take basic precautions:

- Avoid showing valuables in public (phone, camera, accessories)
- Use ride-hailing apps and authorized taxis from the airport or hotel
- Don't walk alone at night in poorly lit areas
- Use card instead of cash whenever possible

At the airport: go directly to the official transport counters. Do not take taxis from people who approach you at the exit — they may be unofficial drivers.

07. GASTRONOMY — CULINARY CAPITAL OF LATIN AMERICA

Peru is a gastronomic powerhouse thanks to its three regions (coast, highlands, and jungle), its popular urban cuisine, its innovative fusions, and its iconic beverages.

Coast: Standouts include ceviche, fresh and vibrant, and lomo saltado, an icon of Peruvian fusion.

Highlands: Ancestral cuisine with dishes like pachamanca and cuy chactado, with intense flavors and centuries-old tradition.

Jungle: Unique flavors like juane and tacacho con cecina, representative of the Peruvian Amazon.

→ Traditional urban flavors: Classics like anticuchos, papa rellena, causa limeña, picarones, and tamal criollo — an essential part of everyday Peruvian life.

→ Fusion cuisine: Peru has created some of the world's most recognized fusions, such as Nikkei (Japanese-Peruvian) and Chifa (Chinese-Peruvian), plus contemporary concepts blending global techniques with local ingredients.

→ Iconic beverages: Pisco is the base of iconic cocktails like the Pisco Sour and Chilcano. Chicha morada represents the more cultural and everyday side of Peru.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR THE FORUM

Arrive early to take advantage of the full program. UTEC has a large campus — get familiar with the space from day one.

Get a local SIM or eSIM (Preferred). Airalo and Holafly are good eSIM options. SIM rental is also available at the airport.

Most countries do not require a visa to enter Peru for tourism. You only need a valid passport with at least 6 months of validity.
